F.A.Q.

1. When will our clients have a morning ticket and when will they have afternoon?

When passengers overnight in Machu Picchu, MT Peru is suggesting a afternoon visit for the first day and a morning visit on the second day

2. Will they ever need both?

If passengers want to enter in both shifts two tickets will be required

3. Which "circuit" will they be on? Is it true that they only have 2.5 hours for their "circuit"? What will they do the other 1.5 hours that they have at the site?

The most visited is Circuit 1 which covers most of the citadel area (higher, medium and lower part). The estimated time for this circuit is 3 hours, but people can stay up to 4h maximum.

4. We want our clients to have the option of climbing Huayna or MP Mountain always, on day 4. Will this be possible with the new regime?

Yes, passengers with tickets to Machu Picchu + Huayna Picchu and Machu Picchu + MP Mountain will be allowed to stay up to 6 hours and 7 hours respectively.

F.A.Q.

5. They will have to be guided on these extra climbs?

According to the complementary rules, no guide will be required for those passengers with tickets to Huayna or MP Mountain. However, we do recommend to provide guided services for these routes, at least for the first day entrance.

6. Do they have to make the climb if they have the ticket, or can they choose on site to take another "circuit"?

They can decide to only do any of the circuits 1, 2 or 3. Please bear in mind that MP Mountain and Hayna Picchu are not part of any circuit

7. Will the second day be unguided moving forward?

Yes, if passengers show their ticket from day 1 and mention their guide name they had the day prior, a tourist guide will not be required for a second day.
